NROTC Program

The Marine Corps utilizes the NROTC program to prepare the future Officer Corps of the future to meet the dynamic challenges in the next generation of technology and leadership. As part of the program, you will participate in Naval Science classes covering a variety of topics to include history, science, and leadership, and you will spend your first two summers learning about the Marine Corps and Navy. In your third summer, you will spend six weeks attending Marine Officer Candidates School in Quantico, VA.
